

The wine glass is a combination of three Turks Heads. There are many different combinations of Turks Heads that can be combined to create a wine glass shape. Typically I use a six or eight bight Turks Head as the base, and three or four bight Turks Head as the stem, and any multiple of three or four for the cup portion. This grid is just one of unlimited possible permutations of knots that can form the shape of a wine glass. Also note that the cup portion of this knot has an over two-under two pattern. You can change the pattern to one of your own choosing with a few strokes from a pen or marker.

This grid should wrap around a paper towel tube. Stuff the tube with newspaper, and insert a pin or nail at each gray doughnut. It is easiest to start at a color change, but you can start anywhere you want. The colors are only there to help you stay on track, and help guide you through the knot.
